Demonstrating that the power of mantra is as relevant today as it has been for thousands of years, Deva Premal and Miten have transferred their unique style of sacred contemporary music from the New Age market into the mainstream, achieving combined international album sales of over half a million and attracting many admirers, extending from The Dalai Lama to Cher.

Deva Premal and Miten have toured the world for the past 15 years, holding concerts and workshops all over Europe, Asia, and America – sharing their unique sound with a wide range of audiences from all walks of life – from fans of yoga and meditation to those just seeking a spiritual and calming sound to soothe the discord and cacophony of everyday life. Deva Premal and Miten achieved international media recognition in May 2004 when they launched a peace line for stressed London City workers, which saw them become the first musicians to appear on International Financial TV station, CNBC.

Deva Premal and Miten's sell-out international concert tour reaches the Shaw Theatre, Euston Road, London on Saturday 10th June, bringing their exceptional performances to the UK. The couples sound expresses the ancient wisdom of multi-denominational mantras and prayers through a modern musical voice. During the concerts, Deva Premal invites her audience to experience the performance without obligatory applause – favouring introspection over gesticulation – and their style blends acapella singing with lush harmonies, acoustic guitar and Indian instruments. At both the matinee and evening concerts, Deva Premal and Miten will be accompanied by Manose, a Nepalese bansuri flute player. Deva Premal and Miten's concerts are remarkable for the removal of the traditional divides between performers and audience – allowing for a sense of shared experience and creating a unique and moving musical experience
